

2006 public lecture series

Take a meeting with the world.

Sit down with the political leaders and newsmakers who shape and influence world policy.

never take a meeting without an agenda.

The University of Judaism announces four evenings addressing the most important agenda of all: our future. Consider the situation: Terrorism is part of our social fabric. The war is a year older and the end seems no closer. Israel is in motion. North Korea is testing nuclear weapons. Change in the highest court is shifting the balance of power. Issues of security versus privacy, First Amendment rights, religion and the very definition of democracy divide our nation.

Yet today's news sounds like a Hollywood pitch meeting. The complex, intricate issues shaping the world are reduced to twenty second sound bytes. Context, precedent and historical perspective are lost, leaving us with an incomplete picture of the world.

Enter the Public Lecture Series. It's your chance to hear world leaders and newsmakers—the great thinkers and speakers of our time—as they delve into the context, history and the thinking behind the policies and decisions that impact our lives. If your agenda is to be informed, inspired and empowered, then take a meeting with us.

2006 public lecture series
UNIVERSITY OF JUDAISM
university of judaism department of continuing education